If you're a Seattle Mariners fan and like being right in the action, there's no better seat at T-Mobile Park than the Diamond Club. Long considered the most exclusive seats in the ballpark, the Diamond Club is getting a run for its money these days with the brand new Press Club, but it is no less prestigious for the new competition.After undergoing a major renovation in the off-season, the Diamond Club is sleek, stylish, comfortable, and luxurious. For posterity, here's a photo from 2018 in the Diamond Club - read on for more pictures of how gorgeous the space looks now in comparison.The Diamond Club opens 2 hours and 15 minutes before first pitch, making it and the Press Club the first sections in the stadium that open. Both clubs share a private VIP entrance near the Home Plate gate.The closest parking for the Diamond Club is in the Mariners garage. Season ticket holders receive a VIP parking pass with their membership, but if you are just joining for one game, you can buy parking on StubHub. I routinely sell our VIP parking for less than I see posted at lots much further away, so it pays to plan ahead and grab a parking pass before your game! On less popular game days, you can buy parking at the Mariners garage when you arrive, but typically you need to have purchased your parking pass ahead of time.If you've been to the clubs or suites at T-Mobile Park, you might be tempted to go up to level 5, across the skybridge, and into the stadium via the club entrance. However, this is not the fastest way to access the Diamond Club. Visitors should go down to the street level and cross the street to their private entrance next to the ticket windows on Edgar Martinez Dr. You'll know you're in the right place if you see the Edgar Martinez statue. To the left of the Edgar Martinez statue in this photo is a small group of people standing at the Diamond Club and Press Club private entranceSecurity at the Diamond Club entrance is quick, with 2 private lanes just for Diamond and Press Club visitors. I have been to dozens of games in 2023 and have never waited more than a couple of minutes at security.Reminder: don't forget about the clear bag policy at T-Mobile Park! One of two mobile ticket scanners in the vestibule of the Diamond Club entrance at T-Mobile ParkAfter going through the metal detector, you enter a vestibule and scan your tickets. A short hallway takes you to the divergence point of the Diamond Club and Press Club - Diamond Club members walk down a few steps to the entrance to the Diamond Club, while Press Club members take an elevator up to their area.You will check in at the desk for the Diamond Club much as you do at a restaurant, where the staff will assign you a table and show you to your seat. You will also receive a wristband designating your Diamond Club tickets for the day, which then allows you to move about the stadium and return without rescanning your tickets.Diamond Club Main SpaceThe main lounge space in the Diamond Club is located underground. Visitors enjoy all the amenities on the lower level before stepping up to their outside stadium seats. The main dining area with tables and booths at the Mariners Diamond Club - the same space as in the 2018 photo above!This is a clever way to maximize the space nearest to home plate, but it does create a sense of separation from the game when you are inside. TVs broadcast the action, but you feel closed-off from the game. For this reason, most people arrive well in advance of the game so that they can eat and drink at leisure before taking their seats.Once inside, you first see a giant bar along the back wall. There are tons of seating options, including tables and booths. The Diamond Club was entirely renovated between the 2022 and 2023 seasons, so all the furnishings and finishes are brand new and beautiful. The Diamond Club and Press Club share a similar aesthetic, with warm jewel tones, gold accents, and a whiskey bar feel. The espresso bar in the Mariners Diamond ClubThere is a huge buffet in the Diamond Club, with a make-your-own salad bar, hot dishes, a carving station, and more. Separately, there is an ice cream / dessert station and a coffee bar. Sunday brunch offeringsThe food is supposed to be the same between the Press Club and the Diamond Club, but I've seen some differences week over week, mostly due to space differences. The Press Club has more prepared salads, for instance, while the Diamond Club has a make your own salad bar.The candy wall of your dreams at the Diamond ClubAlong the walls leading to the stadium seating area, assuage your sweet tooth with a massive candy wall.The ice cream and dessert station at the Mariners Diamond ClubThe menu rotates daily, and there is a huge selection to keep everyone happy. In addition to the buffet options, once at your seat, you can order drinks and light bites to be brought to you during the game.All the food and drinks are included with your ticket price, and they don't skimp on quality. My only complaint with the food is that there is inconsistent labeling of allergens, making it difficult to navigate a large buffet with food allergies. However, the staff is always happy to double check ingredients or prepare a dish that is safe for a visitor.I personally like the seats in the Press Club better than the seats in the Diamond Club, but there is no denying the energy you get from being right in the action. The Diamond Club is made up of 4 sections, with 8 rows in each section. The sections for Diamond Club are section 25, section 27, section 33, and section 35. With up to 22 seats in a row, the Diamond Club can hold a total of 408 visitors.Diamond Club seats are the first 8 rows behind home plate, and they put you up close with the players. You really feel like you are in the game!Section 35, rows 3-8 of the Diamond ClubThat said, there are a few things to note about the Diamond Club seats that may influence your decision on the best seats at T-Mobile Park. Diamond Club seats are in full sun unless the dome is closed for inclement weather. Plan ahead for the elements. Secondly, there is a safety net that some visitors may find bothersome to look through. Your eyes pretty easily adjust to it, but you are definitely viewing everything through the netting.Sections 25 and 35 are nearest to the dugouts - 25 is the Mariners dugout and 35 is the visitors dugout. This can be good or bad depending on how busy you want your experience to be...you can get an up-close look at the players and their preparations, but you also have more distractions. Visitors sitting in section 35 also contend with the opening to the field being right there for the groundskeepers, salute to service members, and other non-players taking the field throughout the game. There can be a lot of people milling about the tunnel depending on what is planned for the game, and it could be distracting. However, this is also where the handicap seating is located, specifically row 1 of section 35. That makes row 3 a particularly good view, because there is a large separation between row 1 and row 3 and your view is not blocked at all.The view from Section 27, row 2 in the Diamond ClubSeats in the Diamond Club are plush and comfortable, with cup holders attached to the back of the seat in front of you. Front row seats enjoy a bar-top table. Though you can't be closer than these seats, I personally prefer the space and size of the seats in the Press Club vs the Diamond Club. When you attend a game in the Mariners Diamond Club, you get a lot more than just your ticket. Visitors can shop at a small, private team store, letting you grab Mariners gear and merchandise without braving the crowds. The selection is limited but current, with changing styles and a little something for visitors of all ages.Visitors to the Diamond Club also automatically receive any giveaways happening on the day of their game. The Mariners often offer something free for the first 10,000 eligible fans to enter the stadium, which can lead to long lines before the games. Diamond and Press Club visitors get the giveaways on their way out the door, regardless of arrival time.I've already covered some of the other amenities like in-seat dining, padded seats, and early stadium access.The Diamond Club bathrooms are large and newly renovated. The women's bathroom has a nursing room, which is a particularly nice touch for new moms. These bathrooms are private to the Diamond Club and easily accessible from the stadium seats.The Diamond Club is fully sold out to season ticket holders, and there is a fierce waiting list to get a membership. However, seats in the Diamond Club are regularly available for resale on StubHub and other resellers when season ticket holders are unable to attend. Game prices vary based on schedule and opponent, but visitors should expect to pay anywhere from $400-$800 a seat for the Diamond Club experience. This certainly isn't your budget ballpark experience, but it is a memorable Seattle date night activity and an awesome experience if you're visiting the city and want to take in a game.Perks of Diamond Club first row: staff will sometimes slip you a foul ball! (Picture from 2018)The price is steep, but taking in a game from the front row (or even the 8th!) with a full buffet and top shelf bar is an experience you won't soon forget. From the friendly and helpful staff to the all-new furnishings and the conveniences exclusive to the Diamond Club, I have to say yes, Diamond Club seats are worth it if you can afford the splurge! What do you say - will you be taking in any games from the front row? With seating featured in the first eight rows behind home plate, there's no better way to take in Reds baseball than the Diamond Seats at Great American Ball Park! This ultimate fan experience also offers in-seat food and beverage service, ensuring you never miss a moment of the game. Arrive early through the private entrance to enjoy a gourmet buffet in the climate-controlled Lexus Diamond Club lounge prior to the game.In 2024, premium seat holders enjoyed the first major renovation of the Lexus Diamond Club with updates that included an expanded interior club area that provides additional seating, along with a redesigned buffet and bar to improve the dining room experience even more.All-inclusive ticket grants access to upscale buffet and full beverage service.Access to the private Lexus Diamond Club Lounge where you can relax in a comfortable climate-controlled environment, complete with big screen TVs.The pregame gourmet buffet is available from gates open until one hour after the game startsIn-seat food and beverage service during the game.Season Ticket Members receive invitations to exclusive special events.*The sale and consumption of all alcoholic beverages is subject to Ohio law. Arrive Early: Start the Experience Before the First Pitch One of the best ways to fully enjoy the perks of the Diamond Club is by arriving well before the game starts. The private lounges and dining areas are at their best when the ballpark is still relatively quiet, giving you ample time to relax, explore, and indulge without the game-day rush. Why Arriving Early Is a Game-Changer: Unwind in the Lounges: The private lounges are the perfect spot to enjoy a drink, settle into the atmosphere, and mingle with other guests. Arriving early ensures you have time to soak it all in without feeling rushed. Enjoy a Leisurely Meal: The Diamond Club's gourmet dining options are worth savoring. By arriving early, you can take your time to enjoy a full-course meal or sample a variety of appetizers before heading to your seat. Avoid Crowds: Even with private entrances, arriving early means you'll bypass any last-minute congestion at the gates, making your entry into the ballpark seamless. Pro Tip: Check the schedule for any pre-game activities, such as batting practice or player warm-ups, which can be viewed up close from the Diamond Club's prime seating area. 2. Dress Comfortably but Smartly: Look Good, Feel Great While the Phillies Diamond Club doesn't enforce a formal dress code, the atmosphere is one of refined luxury, and many guests choose to dress accordingly. Think of it as the perfect balance between comfort and sophistication - after all, you're attending a baseball game, but in one of the most premium areas of the park. Dress Tips for the Diamond Club: Business-Casual Vibes: For men, polos, button-down shirts, or dressy casual attire paired with chinos or nice jeans are great options. Women often opt for stylish yet comfortable outfits, like summer dresses, tailored pants, or skirts with a dressy top. Comfortable Shoes: While the Diamond Club is all about luxury, there's still some walking involved, whether it's exploring the ballpark or navigating between the lounges and your seat. Comfortable footwear is key to enjoying the day without any discomfort. Show Off Your Phillies Pride: If you want to represent your team, a sleek Phillies jersey or team colors can strike the perfect balance between casual and game-day chic. Pro Tip: If you're attending a game during the spring or fall, bring a light jacket or sweater - the temperature can drop during evening games, even in the luxurious seating area. 3. Try the Signature Cocktails: Sip on Something Special The Diamond Club's bars are known for their curated drink menus, and no visit is complete without trying one of their signature cocktails. Expert mixologists craft these drinks with high-quality ingredients, offering a unique way to toast your game-day experience. They're always happy to help and know the best angles for a great shot. Pace Yourself: With so many dining and drinking options available, it's tempting to indulge in everything at once. Pace yourself so you can enjoy all the Diamond Club's offerings throughout the game.
